FIBRA ELECTROLUMINISCENTA

Fibra

ELECTROLUMINESCENȚA

Fibra electroluminescentă este compusă dintr-un fir subțire de cupru acoperit cu 5 straturi de semiconductori electroluminescenti și polimeri, de un film subțire transparent cu conductibilitate ridicată și de două sau mai multe învelișuri de protecție. Din punct de vedere electric, fibra este un condensator care emite lumină. Aplicând curent alternativ între doi electrozi (nucleul central și filmul transparent extern) materialul semiconductor emite lumină (voltaj 90-130V și frecvență 50-4000 Hz).

Alimentare:

Fibra electroluminescentă este alimentată la 90-130V (AC) cu ajutorul unui inverter, folosit pentru a transforma curentul continuu în curent alternativ și pentru a mari frecvența de lucru optimă. Inverterul trebuie dimensionat în funcție de lungimea fibrei și este alimentat cu curent continuu (DC), baterii sau alimentator.
